

Allison Noyes

Associate Professor of Communication Studies at Loyola Marymount University

Los Angeles, CA, US

College of Communication & Fine Arts

Biography

Professor Allison Noyes received her B.A. in politics from Mount Holyoke College and her M.A. and Ph.D. in communication from the University of Southern California. She specializes in organizational and group communication, health care organizations, and strategic communication. Her current research focuses on interprofessional collaboration, organizational culture and power dynamics, care disparities, and palliative care. She is currently building on her dissertation research, which examined the role of communication in enabling successful interprofessional team care in a hospital, to look at specific care team roles and communication around end-of-life care. Before joining the Communication Studies department at LMU, Dr. Noyes worked as a researcher for the palliative care team at Children's Hospital Los Angeles while also teaching in the graduate communication management program at the USC Annenberg School for Communication and Journalism.

Industry Expertise

Health Care - Services, Training and Development

Areas of Expertise

Organizational Communication, Health Care Organizations, Group & Interpersonal Communication, Organizational Culture, Organizational Change, Strategic Communication, Corporate Communication, Marketing Communication

Affiliations

International Communication Association, National Communication Association, Academy of Management, Mixed Methods International Research Association

Education

Mount Holyoke College

B.A. Politics

University of Southern California

M.A. Communication

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.