Andrew Deener, Ph.D.

Professor of Sociology at University of Connecticut

Storrs, CT, US

Andrew Deener is a professor of sociology at the University of Connecticut.

Biography

My research focuses on urban inequality, culture, organizations, infrastructure, markets, and the environment, and it combines historical and ethnographic methods. My first book was Venice: A Contested Bohemia in Los Angeles (University of Chicago Press, 2012). I recently completed The Problem with Feeding Cities: The Social Transformation of Infrastructure, Abundance, and Inequality in America (University of Chicago Press, 2020). I am currently writing a book about global urbanism (with Jonathan Wynn), and I am starting a new project about how climate change affects property valuations, risk assessments, and communities. I also write and teach about the logics of qualitative methods and the processes and practices of theorizing in sociology.

Areas of Expertise

Food Systems, Gentrification, Economic Sociology, Culture, City Development

Education

University of California
Ph.D. Sociology

University of California
M.A. Sociology

Pennsylvania State University
B.A. Cultural Studies

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.