Senior Product Manager at Objective Corporation

Biography

An experienced technologist and product manager looking to make a real difference in public sector and highly regulated organisations by improving Objective's core document management, records management, enterprise search and workflow applications. I am passionate about finding the true issues behind problems and solving them with the pragmatic application of technology. In both work and personal contexts I am an expert facilitator able to help groups bond, share experience and work together more effectively. A confident and persuasive public speaker.
