Sample Talks

Infrastructure Financing: The Role for Increased Public Private Partnership

There is tremendous investment demand for improving infrastructure. This demand for investment cannot be met by the state alone and therefore the gap must be filled with an effective framework for public-private partnership.

Global Financial Markets: From Boom to Bust

Financial markets are becoming more global and markets are highly integrated and interdependent. On one hand this has helped diversify risk and on the other has increased the frequency and intensity of financial crisis.

Globalization: Myth or Reality

Although major advances have been made in the area of globalization, a number of factors remain and current political events may slow its future growth

A Two Speed World: Convergence or DeLinking

How economies from the western world and emerging markets are either converging or de-linking. Five major scenarios that shows the facts between the two economies.

Global Corporate Strategy: Effectiveness for Mythical

Most corporate "strategic plans" have little to do with strategy. They are simply a three-year or five-year rolling resource budgets and some sort of market share projection. Calling it "strategic planning" creates false expectations that the exercise will somehow produce a coherent strategy.
