Successfully Engaging with the Publicly Funded Workforce System

Federal, state, and local governments provide billions of dollars annually for job training and related services through the workforce investment system. Are you aware of the programs that are available? Many learning professionals can access a broad range of government resources and programs to support building their organization's skilled workforce. For learning professionals in career transition, the workforce investment system has tools to help them find employment opportunities. The speaker will also review current federal legislation from the 112th Congress that may affect training.
