

Eli Berman

Professor of Economics at UC San Diego

La Jolla, CA, US

Eli Berman is known for applying rational choice analysis to the behavior of radical religious groups.

Biography

Eli Berman is professor of economics at UC San Diego and research director for international security studies at the Institute on Global Conflict and Cooperation. He co-directs the Economics of National Security group at the National Bureau of Economic Research and helps lead the Empirical Studies of Conflict Project and the Economics of National Security Association. Publications include "Small Wars, Big Data: The Information Revolution in Modern Conflict" (with Jacob N. Shapiro and Joseph H. Felter, 2018) and "Radical, Religious and Violent: The New Economics of Terrorism" (2009). Recent grants supporting his research have come from the Minerva Research Initiative and the National Science Foundation. Berman received his doctorate in economics from Harvard University.

Areas of Expertise

Applied Econometrics, Labor Demand and Technological Change, Economics of Religion and Demography, Development and Conflict, Labor Economics, Refugees and Security, Terrorism and Insurgency

Affiliations

University of California Institute on Global Conflict and Cooperation, Research Director, Empirical Studies of Conflict, Member, National Bureau of Economic Research, Research Assistant

Education

Harvard University

Ph.D. Economics

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.