

Felicia Pratto, Ph.D.

Professor of Psychological Sciences at University of Connecticut

Storrs, CT, US

Psychology expert, specializing in race and sex discrimination and intergroup dynamics

Biography

Prof. Pratto's research addresses the processes and consequences of inequality. Thus, her work is known in social psychology, political psychology, and related disciplines. Her research has addressed a variety of real-world issues, including race- and sex- discrimination in hiring, prejudice against lesbians, gay men, and immigrants, violations of International Humanitarian Law in war-time, terrorism and counter-terrorism, and the Arab uprisings. She uses a wide variety of research methods, from interactive games, to lab and field experiments, to international surveys and comparative studies (which compare different societies systematically).

Areas of Expertise

Terrorism and counter-terrorism, Xenophobia, Prejudice, race- and sex- discrimination in hiring, Homophobia, Violations of International Humanitarian Law in war-time

Education

New York University

Ph.D. Social and Personality Psychology

New York University

M.A. Social and Personality Psychology

Carnegie Mellon University

B.A. Psychology

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.