Leadership and Executive Coach, Organizational Designer and Developer, Strategist, and Educator

Biography

John is an entrepreneurial leader with over 30 years of leadership experience involving business, government, education, nonprofit organizations, and faith-based communities that enable him to offer rich resources for students, emerging leaders, and executive leaders, and to create environments for leaders to become the persons they've always wanted to be. John's passion is to inspire people to reach their potential and fulfill their destiny. His leadership and organizational coaching include domestic and international clients in various sectors of culture. John also serves with the Capitol Commission as the Missouri State Minister to their legislature. Previously, he worked for Federal Express, Target Corporation, Learfield Communications, and People Centric Consulting. John is a professional certified coach (PCC) by International Coaches Federation, and Certified Professional Co-Active Coach (CPCC) from the Co-Active Training Institute. He has a DMin. in Organizational Leadership, and M.A. in Intercultural Studies. He has traveled to five continents to do mission work ranging from: feeding the underserved in Central America, to building a home in Haiti, to bringing laughter and love to the children in the Philippine Islands and West Africa. John resides in Missouri with his wife, Christine, of 30 years.
