Laurence Ales

Associate Professor at Carnegie Mellon University

Pittsburgh, PA, US

Laurence Ales' research interests include macroeconomics, optimal taxation, and contract theory.

Biography

Laurence Ales' research focuses on the study of inequality and the design of tax policy. His recent work studies the impact that future disruptive technologies will have on labor markets and determines the best response of policy makers. His work also explores optimal taxation, especially of the very wealthy.

Industry Expertise

Research, Education/Learning, Writing and Editing

Areas of Expertise

Disruptive Technologies, Tax Policy, Economics, Optimal Taxation, Macroeconomics, Contract Theory, Labor Markets

Affiliations

Macroeconomic Dynamics : Associate Editor, Carnegie-Rochester-NYU Conference on Public Policy : Advisory Board Member

Event Appearances

How It?s Made: A General Theory of the Labor Implications of Technological Change
2020 US Census

How It?s Made: A General Theory of the Labor Implications of Technological Change
2021 SED

Optimal Taxation of Income-Generating Choice
2020 Econometric Society World Congress

Education

University of Minnesota
Ph.D. Economics

University of Minnesota
M.S. Economics

University of Rome ? Tor Vergata
B.S. Physics

Accomplishments

Christopher Freeman and Richard R. Nelson Prize
2023

Richard M. Cyert Award for Excellence in Teaching
2023 Tepper School of Business, Carnegie Mellon University

Favorite MBA Professors Of The Class Of 2021
2021 Poets & Quants