Chapel Hill, NC, US

Clinical Associate Professor in the Department of Health Behavior and Director of the Carolina Center for Public Service at UNC

Lynn Blanchard is the director of the Carolina Center for Public Service at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She received her master of public health and doctorate degrees from UNC's Gillings School of Global Public Health, where she also serves on the faculty in Health Behavior. After graduating from East Carolina University, she began her professional life as a public school teacher in Wake County, and after graduate school she was associate director of Family Support Network of North Carolina, held faculty appointments at UNC-Chapel Hill and the Pennsylvania State University, and directed an award-winning community initiative in eastern Pennsylvania. Currently, she oversees development of the Center, including the APPLS Service-Learning, Buckley Public Service Scholars and Thorp Faculty Engaged Scholars programs. She teaches the undergraduate course Philanthropy as a Tool for Social Change, and on the national front, she was co-director of Faculty for the Engaged Campus, an initiative of Community-Campus Partnership for Health and currently serves on the Executive Committee on the Council for Engagement and Outreach of the Association of Public and Land-grant Universities (APLU). In 2016 she was inducted into the national Academy of Community Engagement Scholarship. Dr. Blanchard has provided keynote addresses and workshops in the areas that include public service and community engagement, teamwork and collaboration, promotion and tenure related to community engaged scholarship and other related topics.
