

Malinda Maynor Lowery, Ph.D.

Associate Professor, Department of History & Director, Center for the Study of the American South, College of Arts and Sciences at UNC-Chapel Hill

Chapel Hill, NC, US

Malinda Maynor Lowery's research interests include Native American history, Southern history, foodways, oral history and more.

Malinda Maynor Lowery is a historian and documentary film producer who is a member of the Lumbee Tribe of North Carolina. She is an Associate Professor of History at UNC-Chapel Hill and Director of the Center for the Study of the American South. Her interests include Native American history, Southern history, historical geography, foodways, music, race and ethnicity, identity, and community-engaged research, including documentary film and oral history. Her second book, The Lumbee Indians: An American Struggle, was released by UNC Press in September 2018. She received funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities' Public Scholars Program to complete the book. The book is a survey of Lumbee history from the eighteenth century to the present, written for a general audience. Her first book, Lumbee Indians in the Jim Crow South: Race, Identity, and the Making of a Nation, received the 2011 Labriola American Indian Center National Book Award, presented by Arizona State University, and Best 2010 First Book from the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association. She has produced four documentary films about Native American issues, including the award-winning "In the Light of Reverence," which aired on PBS in 2001 to over 3 million people. Two previous films, "Real Indian" and "Sounds of Faith," examine Lumbee identity and culture. She is co-producer of a documentary film about domestic violence called "Private Violence." She is also co-producer of "A Chef's Life" on PBS.

Native American History, Social and Political History, Southern History, Foodways, Race and Ethnicity, Documentary Film, Oral History, Community-Engaged Research, Historical Geography

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

M.A. 2002/ Ph.D. 2005 History

Stanford University

M.A. Documentary Film and Video

Harvard University

A.B. History and Literature

Winner, Peabody Award

For "A Chef's Life," April 2014

Winner, Hettleman Award

For Artistic and Scholarly Achievement, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, September, 2012.

2011 Labriola American Indian Center National Book Award,

Awarded for the book, "Lumbee Indians in the Jim Crow South: Race, Identity, and the Making of a Nation" (UNC Press, 2010). Presented by Arizona State University,

Best 2010 First Book from the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association

Awarded for the book, "Lumbee Indians in the Jim Crow South: Race, Identity, and the Making of a Nation" (UNC Press, 2010).

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.