

Michelle Zappas

Clinical Associate Professor Dept. of Nursing at the School of Social Work at USC Suzanne Dworak-Peck School of Social Work

Los Angeles, CA, US

Nursing expert, focusing on health care for vulnerable populations across the lifespan.

Biography

Michelle Zappas is a clinical associate professor in the Department of Nursing, where she teaches a course on clinical management of adult patients. She currently serves as a per diem nurse practitioner at the Saban Community Clinic in Los Angeles. Prior to joining USC, she was an assistant clinical professor in nursing at Columbia University. She also worked as a nurse practitioner at the medical center, providing primary medical care to the university's health sciences students. In addition, she served as a family nurse practitioner and director of nursing at a community-based clinic in New York's South Bronx. There she worked to provide evidence-based, preventative and cost-effective health care to a diverse patient population across the lifespan. Zappas received her bachelor's, master's and doctorate degrees in nursing practice from Columbia University. She earned a bachelor's in animal physiology and neuroscience from the University of California, San Diego.

Availability

Keynote, Moderator, Panelist, Workshop, Host/MC, Corporate Training

Industry Expertise

Social Services, Education/Learning, Health Care - Providers, Health and Wellness, Research, Health Care - Facilities, Health Care - Services, Professional Training and Coaching

Areas of Expertise

Nursing Science Education, Women's Health, Health Care for Vulnerable Populations, Nursing Practice, Dermatology, Health Care for Adult Patients

Education

Columbia University
DNP Nursing Practice

Columbia University
MSN Nursing Practice

Columbia University
BSN Nursing Practice

University of California, San Diego
BS Animal Physiology

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.