Biography

Murray Mazer is a software executive and technologist with more than 20 years of industry experience, in companies small and large. He has done research and development, created novel and valuable software systems, started a successful, venture-backed enterprise-class database security company, built, managed, and scaled engineering organizations, and led product architecture functions. Murray has partnered deeply with the world's largest software companies, consulted for public companies on patent issues, written for and spoken to technical and business audiences worldwide, and served on industry panels. He enjoys attacking strategic problems and creating solutions that deliver value. Mr. Mazer specializes in distributed systems, security, privacy, data GRC, and mobile data access, and he is experienced in formulating strategies on the technical, product, and business levels for start-ups and large companies alike.
