

R. Andrew Butters

Assistant Professor of Business Economics and Public Policy at Indiana University, Kelley School of Business

Bloomington, IN, US

R. Andrew Butters is an expert in the areas of industrial organization, productivity, market integration, demand and business cycles.

Biography

R. Andrew Butters is an Assistant Professor in the Business Economics & Public Policy department at the Kelley School of Business at Indiana University. Prior to joining Kelley, he was an Associate Economist in the Economic Research department at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, where he remains a visiting scholar. His research has appeared in journals, such as American Economic Journal: Microeconomics, Economic Inquiry, International Journal of Forecasting, International Journal of Central Banking and Economics Letters. He received his B.A. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, and his Ph.D. from the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University.

Industry Expertise

Energy, Hotels and Resorts, Airlines/Aviation

Areas of Expertise

Industrial Organization, Applied Econometrics, Demand Fluctuations, Market Integration, Productivity, Business Cycles

Education

Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University
Ph.D.

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
B.A. Economics

London School of Economics
General Course Mathematics

Accomplishments

Rising Star Award, International Industrial Organization Conference 2015

Please click here to view the full profile.

This profile was created by Expertfile.