Richard Langevin is an expert in helping companies optimize their business operations, strategies and execution plans to deliver growth.

Biography

Richard A. Langevin is an expert in helping companies optimize their business operations and then help to develop business strategies and execution plans that deliver dramatic growth for companies. Most of his professional background comes as an entrepreneur, as Richard led a $30M IPO as CEO of Authoriszor, Inc. After experiencing good, and not so good, senior care for seniors with his own family and also with his wife's family, Richard Langevin decided there has to be a better way to care for seniors, allowing them to remain safe, independent and in their own home instead of having to move into an assisted living or nursing home facility. In 2017, he purchased the Home Instead Senior Care office in North Dartmouth, MA. Home Instead Senior Care is the largest senior care services company in the world and their office is the largest provider of in-home senior care in the Southcoast region of Massachusetts.
