Biography

Siri Terjesen, Ph.D., is the Dean's Distinguished Professor in Entrepreneurship at Florida Atlantic University. Terjesen received her undergraduate education at the University of Richmond (1997), her master's degree at the Norwegian School of Economics and Business Administration in Bergen, Norway (2002) as a Fulbright Scholar, and Ph.D. at Cranfield University in the UK (2006). She was a postdoctoral fellow at the Queensland University of Technology in Brisbane, Australia (2006-7). Her research on entrepreneurship, corporate governance, and strategy has been published in leading journals such as Academy of Management Review, Journal of Management, Journal of Operations Management, Business Ethics Quarterly, Journal of Business Ethics, Academy of Management Learning & Education, and Strategic Management Journal, and featured in leading media including Bloomberg, U.S. News & World Report, the Times, Huffington Post, and CNBC. In total, she has published more than 65 refereed journal articles, 23 book chapters, two books, and six manuscript white papers (for organizations such as the Kauffman Foundation, World Bank, and U.S. Small Business Administration). Terjesen is an associate editor of Academy of Management Learning & Education, Small Business Economics, and Industry & Innovation, and a member of the editorial boards of Entrepreneurship Theory & Practice and Corporate Governance: International Review. Terjesen is also an affiliated researcher with Catalyst and the Ratio Institute and Membership Chair of the Academy of Management's Entrepreneurship division. She has received numerous teaching awards from both student organizations and national associations, most recently from American University's Office of Fraternity and Sorority Life as Outstanding Faculty Member for 2017 and the Kogod School of Business as "excellent" in teaching (given to 15 faculty/year), as well as from Indiana University's Alpha Kappa Psi chapter in 2014, 2015, and 2016 (given to 10 faculty/year). Prior to her academic career, Terjesen was a management consultant with Accenture, on projects in Washington, D.C., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Berlin, Germany. She was also a competitive ultradistance runner, representing the United States, England, and Queensland (Australia) in international competitions.
