Biography

Steven Forth is a serial entrepreneur (current company TeamFit), marketing strategy and pricing consultant and an angel investor. He currently invests primarily through E-Fund where he frequently leads due diligence teams. Steven began his career in Tokyo in the 1980s where he started his first company in design and software localization. He moved to Vancouver in the 1990s where he built a software localization company and spun out several software companies. In 2001 he founded Recombo and in 2006 he moved to Monitor Group (now Monitor Deloitte) where he led the development of on-line tools. In 2009 he spun out the B2B Value Based Pricing software company LeveragePoint. He returned to Vancouver in 2012 and co-founded TeamFit in 2013. When not working he is reading, writing, cooking or cycling. He lives in Kitsilano with his wife, artist Yoshie Hattori.
