The Internet and the Globalization of Fraud: The New Investigative Challenge of Cloud Computing

Internet technology continues to expand into new areas that could make things more difficult for investigators and auditors. With cloud computing, applications and/or data storage could be outsourced to different cloud computing vendors to reduce costs and avoid the purchase and maintenance costs of Information Technology infrastructure. These cloud service providers can be located anywhere in the world and many use virtual servers. Legal jurisdiction, privacy laws in the country where the cloud
